Love One Another

I want to thank everyone who helped make Friday night's Camp Gray retreat and Student Lock-in a huge success. It was fun seeing how much the kids enjoyed playing games and completing the activities with their families. In addition, as Father Randy pointed out in his homily last weekend, it was also heartwarming to watch the kids bond throughout the night at the Lock-in as they ran around the school, playing "Martyr in the Dark" and Battle Ball in the gym. We adults equally enjoyed the fray.

Several parents have stopped in to comment on the feedback they are hearing from their kids about Friday's events. As one would expect, some of their favorite activities included the games, especially the retreat family games. Perhaps a bit surprising to some of us adults, however, is that equally, the kids also really enjoyed the quiet, reflective time during the two Adorations. Their comments remind all of us of just how spiritually beautiful our children are and what a huge responsibility we carry to nurture them through all the craziness of childhood and adolescence. I have seen that same spirit working throughout our building daily in the kindness they show each other. Sure, there are always going to be disagreements, but overall, the kids really care about each other. I witnessed this today as two new students came into our building, one to stay and one to visit. As I introduced them, the classrooms were full of smiles and small waves of excitement. In Romans, Chapter 12, Paul challenges all of us to work together, reminding us that we are "one body in Christ." He goes on to say, "love one another with mutual affection." Knowing how challenging this can sometimes be for me some days, watching our kids live out Paul's message brings hope for our future.
