All other siblings are welcome to also meet in the gathering space, process in and bring flowers to the statue of Mary. You can bring any type of flowers - whatever you might have growing in your yard will be just fine, or you can bring a purchased flower.

Principal's Corner

“As I have loved you, so you also should love one another.”

In this past Sunday's Gospel reading from John, Jesus instructs us to love one another as he has loved us. He sacrificed everything including His life for us. We can never equal that! But this Gospel reading invites me to think about how I can love my friends and family members. I can be patient and never give up on them. I can bring healing in the form of a kind message or by my ongoing support. I can share what I have learned with others. I can reach out to those who need friends and be available to them. I can share what I have with those who have less. I can be there for people as a support in times of grief. I can allow others to serve me sometimes and to benefit from that experience. I can bring a message of hope and do nothing to discourage them. Through each experience, I can indeed attempt to love others as Jesus loves me.

Know of my prayers for you as you accept the challenge offered in John's Gospel, "Love one another..." May you continue to experience the Lord's love of you and find new ways to love one another for it is through love that we experience God.

~ Joan Leonard

New Moon

By Philip Beckham

The new moon rises in the dim light of night.
While it rises, the stars glisten in the night sky and say hello.
While it sits in the newly lit sky, Earth is calm and steady.
Oh, thank you new moon who lights our nights.
